7
8 WHEREAS, The Supreme Court held on May 14, 2001 that medical necessity is not a 9 defense to manufacturing and distributing marijuana under the Controlled Substances Act in 10 United States v. Oakland Cannabis Buyers Cooperative; and

11 WHEREAS, In that decision, the Supreme Court recognized an exemption to the 12 Controlled Substances Act's prohibition on the manufacture and distribution of marijuana for 13 government-approved research projects; and,

14 WHEREAS, The Controlled Substances Act provides procedures to submit registration 15 applications for government-approved research projects, 21 U.S.C. section 823(f); and

16 WHEREAS, Medical researchers have generally agreed that there is a dearth of 17 research on the human health effects of medical marijuana; now, therefore, be it

18 RESOLVED, That the Board of Supervisors of the City of San Francisco urges the San 19 Francisco Department of Public Health to establish a research study of medical marijuana
20 that would comply with the requirements of section 823(f) of the Controlled Substances Act;
21 and, be it

22 FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Board of Supervisors of the City of San Francisco 23 also urges the San Francisco Department of Public Health to establish formal procedures for 24 the cannabis buyers clubs of San Francisco to apply for registration within the Department of 25 Public Health's research study.
