9 WHEREAS, The City of San Francisco has long supported the arts and has been 10 home to some of America's finest contemporary poets for generations and remains a source 11 of enduring inspiration for all; and

12 WHEREAS, The City of San Francisco is an acknowledged "poetic center" for both the 13 world's aspiring and accomplished poets, writers and artists of today; and

14 WHEREAS, The neighborhood of North Beach, known as "the Home of the Beat 15 Generation", is particularly distinguished by its literary and cultural history; and

16 WHEREAS, The corner of Filbert and Grant holds literary and historical significance in 17 Beat lore and the literary history of San Francisco; and

18 WHEREAS, City Lights Bookstore, an officially designated historical landmark and 19 center of local poetry, had its early editorial offices as City Lights Publishing House on this 20 very same corner for over 10 years from 1967 to 1978; and

21 WHEREAS, San Francisco's first Poet Laureate and co-founder of City Lights 22 Bookstore, Lawrence Ferlinghetti, applauds designating this corner as the official site of 23 Poet's Corner; and

1 WHEREAS, Bob Kaufman Alley, formerly Harwood Alley, is named after legendary
2 Beat poet Bob Kaufman, and was traversed by many poets for decades, and is only a shout 3 away up the tiny Filbert Street steps from the corner of Grant and Filbert; and

4 WHEREAS, The New Upper Grant Avenue Fall Art Fair, to be held on Sunday, 5 September 22, 2002, is the official event for honoring poets in San Francisco and their 6 contributions to the multi-cultural life of our diverse city now and forever; therefore, let it be
